Not illustrated. 1865 Excerpt: . . . hot Autumnal morning heard the corn-fields round; Nor yet to lonely man, now almost bound By slumber, near his house a murmuring river, Eunning and droning oer the stones for ever; Not such faint voice of autumn sat encrowned, And not such liquid murmur, O my heart! But tears that drop oer graves, and sins, and fears, A sound the very weeper scarcely hears: A music in which silence hath some part. O Thou all-gentle, who all-healing art, Hold not Thy peace, sweet Saviour, at my tears. n. The coast descended to the brook of reeds, The river Kenah southwards. Ia the stream The armour of men which used to gleam, Marching right up to do those daring deeds Upon the Canaanite. Wave to wave succeeds: O ancient river! age succeeds to age. 1 ask thee nothing of the battles rage, Or how the hewing of...
